Research Integrity Developments and Activities

Research at DMU covers a wide range of disciplines and researchers are faced with a range of ethical issues and integrity challenges. Factors include the subject-specific guidance for researchers and the ethical standards (http://www.dmu.ac.uk/research/ethics - ad-governance/research-ethics-ethical - applies) and the role of DMU Research Services in providing any changes to the ICF for each project at DMU.

d. Please refer to the Research Ethics Code for Professionals (<http://www.dcu.ie/~research-dcu/research-ethics-professionals>)

2. The DMU Research Ethics Code for Professionals (ReCOP), is subject to a review process which highlights the significance of the 22/23 year, including guidance regarding the standards already applied and clarification of the code's general principles.

3. Faculty Websites - Research Ethics and Integrity Webpages are subject to a review process. Faculty pages should include the ethics and integrity pages and discipline-specific advice for staff and students. It is the responsibility of each faculty to ensure that the Research Integrity page is updated.
